Introduction

The Nottingham City’s Family Support Pathway 2018/20 sets out the threshold for access to support and services for professionals working with children and families, to promote welfare, safeguard and achieve positive outcomes, so that children and young people are safe from harm, inside their home, outside their home and online.

The purpose of the Family Support Pathway is to ensure that children and families receive the right help, at the right time. It shows the level of support and safety that may be needed by children and families from universal, early help, specialist and protective services.

The Family Support Pathway is a guide for all practitioners and managers in every agency working with children, young people and their families. It will enable practitioners within the Children’s Partnership and Adult Services to work in collaboration and have a shared responsibility to support children and families.

It highlights the need for professionals to engage in good quality and effective conversations with children, their families, networks and other professionals, and to undertake good quality assessments to ensure children and families get the right help, at the right time.

Over the past five years, we have been developing a strong, evidence based practice model for agencies across the partnership, which is supported by recognised tools and programmes, using a common language to engage with children and families to build resilience and capacity within our families and communities in Nottingham. The model is Strengths Based, Whole Family, Restorative and Trauma Informed.

Nottingham City Local Authority has adopted an Early Help assessment for the early identification and assessment for family support. The Safeguarding Children Board has asked for a review of assessments used across the city by partnership agencies to develop a consistent Early Help assessment for use across the partnership to undertake and record assessments.

Guidance and information is widely communicated to the Children’s Partnership and Adult Services on how to initiate Early Help. Further information is available on the Children’s Partnership website at www.nottinghamchildrenspartnership.co.uk
Nottingham City Safeguarding Children Board will become the Nottingham City Safeguarding Children Partnership on 1st April 2019. This is due to new statutory guidance contained in Working Together 2018. Organisations and agencies have a shared and equal duty to make arrangements to safeguard and work to promote the welfare of all children in a local area. Under section 11, of the Children Act 2004, organisations and agencies have a duty to ensure they consider the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children when carrying out their functions and must show independent scrutiny. The responsibility for this locally rests with the three safeguarding partners who have a shared and equal duty. The safeguarding partners are defined as, the local authority, a clinical commissioning group for an area any part of which falls within the local authority area, and the chief officer of police for an area any part of which falls within the local authority area.

Our Children’s Public Health provider (CityCare) and Local Authority Early Help services, for 0-5 year olds, are aligning to deliver an efficient and effective integrated service model for Giving Children the Best Start in Life. The model will provide support and enable families to optimise their children’s physical, emotional, cognitive and social development as crucial strands of their global health and wellbeing, creating the foundation for every child to reach their full potential in childhood and beyond.

The overarching outcomes for the Integrated service delivery are:
1. Positive maternal health
2. Maternal mental health
3. Positive attachment
4. Children are healthy and adopt healthy lifestyles
5. Children have positive mental health and wellbeing
6. Children are safe
7. Children achieve developmental milestones and are ready for school

Key Developments
Our Vision

Our Vision is a city where every child and young person can enjoy their childhood in a warm and supporting environment, free from poverty and safe from harm; a city where every child grows up to achieve their full potential.

Nottingham City Children & Young People’s Plan 2016-2020

We have developed a proactive safeguarding response, engaging with partners across the city such as, Community Protection, Police and Education, to share a child-centred approach to assessing and reducing the risks with regard to contextualised safeguarding, such as, knife and other weapon-enabled crime, being drawn into gang affiliations (county lines activity), child criminal and sexual exploitation.

The Child Sexual Exploitation (CSE) Information Network and the Child Sexual Exploitation (CSE) Procedural Flowchart and Multi Agency Risk Assessment Tool support practitioners in their work to protect children at risk of, or experiencing CSE. The Child Criminal Exploitation (CCE) Pathway and Multi Agency Risk Assessment Tool support practitioners in their work to protect children at risk of, or experiencing CCE. Further information is available on the Safeguarding Children Board website.

For identification, assessment and referral of domestic abuse or violence, the Domestic Abuse, Stalking, Harassment and Honour Based Violence: Risk Assessment Checklist (DASH RIC) form should be used by all non-police staff or volunteers in Nottingham and Nottinghamshire who receive a disclosure of domestic abuse or violence. The form allows you to assess the risk to the person experiencing abuse and make an appropriate referral for support.

All children who have Special Educational Needs and/or Disabilities (SEND) should make progress in school in all areas of the curriculum, and have the right to be included in their local communities and families. Wherever possible this must be facilitated by universal, early help and targeted support as well as statutory services. When a child is identified as having a special educational need and/or disability this means they may require support or interventions that are additional to and different from the support that other children require.

A school must identify why this is happening and what support will need to be put in place to enable the child to participate; this will be identified through The Graduated Approach and is outlined in the Routes to Inclusion (R2i) toolkit. This enables universal educational provision to consistently assess, identify, provide intervention and monitor progress in order to meet the needs of pupils with special educational needs and/or disabilities through evidence based practice. If, despite effective implementation of a graduated approach the child requires further support to make expected progress, the school and/or parents may decide that an application for an Education, Health and Care (EHC) Assessment is required. Where a child is identified with a special educational need and/or disability, all assessments completed by practitioners should be holistic to include education, health and care needs. Nottingham City’s graduated approach in respect of short break services is outlined in its Short Breaks statement, threshold and access criteria.

The Young Carers (Needs Assessment) Regulations 2015 require local authorities to look at the needs of the whole family when carrying out a young carer’s needs assessment. A young carer’s needs assessment should combine support and help across Children’s and Adult Services and local services for young carers, to ensure a family approach is taken when assessing and providing help for young carers.
Our principles

• Our aim is to identify needs early, to access and provide effective early help in promoting the welfare of children, rather than reacting later.

• It means providing early help as soon as a problem emerges, at any point in a child’s life, from the foundation years through to teenage years.

• Early help can also prevent further problems arising, for example, if it is provided as part of a support plan where a child has returned home to their family from care.

Talking and listening to children, families and professionals

• Make sure that we listen to the voice of the child to understand their needs.

• Use a common language and approach and take opportunities to engage and talk to children, their family, wider networks and professionals.

• Use a strength based approach to understand a child’s individual and personal set of circumstances, and their family’s situation.

Help families to help themselves

• Work in partnership with the whole family to find solutions for healthy, happy and safe families. It must be remembered in law that the needs of the child are paramount and therefore any concerns about their safety and welfare must be responded to by any practitioner.

• Address challenges by working with family’s strengths, providing early help, targeted family support and specialist services to build resilience, rather than dependency, in the children and families we work with.

• Work with our communities to build their capacity to support one another, to safeguard our children and young people from abuse, harm and exploitation.
Nottingham model of universal, prevention, early help and specialist services
Nottingham City offers a wide range of support services enabling the needs of children, young people and families to be met through universal services. If needs cannot be met within universal services, practitioners will need to consider if early help and more targeted, or specialist and protective support is required.

Assessing need and providing help

Assessment requires practitioners to gather historical and current information and form judgements about a child’s needs and the ability of the family to meet those needs within any given set of circumstances. In order to understand a child’s and family’s circumstances and history, practitioners from all agencies need to identify patterns and themes by completing a chronology of significant events. This practice ensures that the child remains visible and the focus of the work remains on the child. Agency chronologies can be drawn together to create a multi-agency chronology providing a wealth of information to support critical analysis and effective decision making.

At times, this will also require practitioners to consider the likely level of risk to a child where there are concerns about the circumstances the child is living within. Local agencies should work together to undertake an effective assessment of the needs of individual children who may benefit from early help services.

A good assessment must identify the level of need and risk the child will face inside and outside the family and online. The assessment must gather information and provide a clear analysis and plan that is recorded and monitored. The assessment must be a dynamic process and respond to the needs and views of the child. The assessment and plan should focus on the impact of provision and achieve good outcomes for the child and family. Children and families may need support from a wide range of local agencies. Where a child and family will benefit from co-ordinated support from more than one agency, a multi-agency Early Help assessment should be initiated. A lead practitioner should be identified with the child and family to undertake the assessment. The lead professional will provide help to the child and family and co-ordinate the delivery of support.

The assessment should be undertaken with the agreement of the child and their parents or carers and it should involve the child and family as well as all the professionals who are working with them. If parents and/or the child do not engage in the Early Help assessment, the Lead Professional should make a judgement as to whether, without help, the needs of the child will escalate. If so, a referral into Children’s Social Care may be

Assessment Process and Stages

The following diagram illustrates the process of assessment.

Signs of safety framework

The tools used in the Signs of Safety model have a wider application to all levels of work and different settings where workers need to communicate with children about their feelings and engage families in making changes.

Signs of Safety are about building on the strengths and safety already present within families to create resilience and encourage families to find their own solutions to what’s happening in their lives. Safety and wellbeing is not created in services but within families’ homes. Practitioners involve children and young people and work with their family and support network to build safety for the child/young person.

The framework consists of four key questions:
1. What’s working well? – Strengths and safety
2. What are we worried about? – Dangers, risks, needs, concerns
3. How worried are we? – Safety and wellbeing scale including danger and worry statements
4. What needs to happen? – Safety and wellbeing goals

Early Help Assessment

The early help assessment should be used when:

- You are worried about how well a child is progressing. You might be worried about their health, development, welfare, behaviour, progress in learning or any other aspect of their wellbeing.
- A child or their parent / carer raises a concern with you.
- The child’s needs are unclear, or broader than your service can address i.e. multi-agency.
- The child would benefit from an assessment to help you or your colleagues understand their needs better.
- The child has substantial disabilities and their needs cannot be met by universal services.
- There are concerns regarding the child’s/young person’s development.
- There are concerns regarding the parent’s/carer’s capacity to meet the child’s/young person’s needs.
- There are concerns regarding the parent’s/carer capacity to meet the unborn child’s needs (pre birth assessment).
- The wider family and environmental factors are impacting on the child’s/young person’s development and the parent/carer’s parenting capacity.
- The child has special educational needs (whether or not they have a statutory Education, Health & Care Plan)
- There are concerns regarding the child’s/young person’s development including physical, social and emotional
- The child is showing signs of being drawn into anti-social behaviour or criminal behaviour, including gang involvement and association with organised crime groups
- The child is a young carer
- The child is misusing drugs or alcohol themselves
- The child has returned home to their family from care

THE EARLY HELP ASSESSMENT IS NOT TO BE USED WHERE THERE ARE SIGNIFICANT OR IMMEDIATE CONCERNS ABOUT THE SAFETY OF THE CHILD
Responsive immediate protection should be used when:

Where there are immediate concerns that a child is at risk or has suffered significant harm including physical, sexual, emotional harm or neglect, a referral should be made into Social Care via the Children and Families Direct Multi-Agency Safeguarding Hub or when out of hours, the Emergency Duty Team, without delay and without the need for an Early Help assessment.

Determining whether a child or young person is suffering, or at risk of suffering significant harm can be complex. Practitioners in all agencies have a responsibility to be aware of the indicators of significant harm, the NCSCB Safeguarding Children Procedures and, their own agency’s Child Protection Policy.

Indicators requiring an immediate referral to social care

The age and vulnerability of a child must be taken into consideration when assessing the impact of the concerns and risks.

- Child has an unexplained injury or injuries
  - the explanation is inconsistent with the injury or injuries
  - there are conflicting explanations for the injury or injuries
- A non-mobile child with a unexplained, inconsistent and conflicting bruising and/or mark
- Children with repeated incidents of minor bruising that are causing professionals concern
- Where the parents/carers have significant substance use issues which may make the children vulnerable to neglect and/or to exploitation
- Where there are serious concerns regarding the risk of significant harm to an unborn baby
- Child lives or has contact with adults who are known to pose a risk to children
- Where there is evidence of the trilogy of risk being present and this significantly increases the likelihood of harm to the child
  - domestic abuse
  - adult mental health issues
  - substance use
- Allegations or disclosures of abuse including sexual abuse, evidence of grooming and child sexual exploitation and online abuse
- Left “home alone” and their age and vulnerability places them at risk
- Child victims of trafficking, modern slavery, child criminal exploitation, forced marriage, honour based violence, county lines activity
Information sharing

Effective sharing of information between professionals and local agencies is essential for effective identification, assessment and service provision that are co-ordinated around children and families. Early sharing of information is the key to providing effective early help where there are emerging problems. At the other end of the continuum, sharing information can be essential to put in place effective child protection services. Fears about sharing information cannot be allowed to stand in the way of the need to promote the welfare and protect the safety of children.

If a professional has concerns about a child’s welfare and believes they are suffering or likely to suffer harm, then they should share the information with Local Authority Children’s Social Care. More extensive guidance can be accessed at:

www.gov.uk/government/publications/information-sharing-for-practitioners-and-managers

In all cases, if a worker remains in any doubt about whether or not to share information then they should consult with their line manager.

Resolving inter-agency disagreements

Escalation process

To ensure positive multi-agency working, a discussion between partner agencies and Social Care about the nature and level of concern and the most appropriate level of intervention is expected. It is essential, however, that practitioners from all agencies do not let these discussions take the focus away from the welfare of the child and the need to safeguard and promote welfare.

In some cases, a more formal mechanism is required to assist in the speedy resolution of disagreement using problem solving and mediation, particularly when responding to complex cases. It is generally accepted that all agencies manage risks in different ways and that these differences are mostly helpful in providing checks and balances in work with families. There is a need, however, to avoid polarisation by different agencies. Where this occurs there is a risk that the focus on the child will be lost and services can lose sight of the needs of the child.

Good practice dictates that we should resolve them as soon as it practically possible and in some cases where there is a perceived high level of risk, this should be resolved as far as is possible within a 24 hour period.

There are two examples at which conflict may arise most frequently:

1. When agencies make referrals into Social Care and a decision is made not to accept a referral. When this occurs, feedback should be made to the referrer verbally within 24 hours. If disagreement occurs this needs to be resolved quickly to prevent drift. Where possible the disagreement should be resolved within 48 hours, however the mediation stages could take longer. The stages are as follows:
   - If the referrer is unhappy with the response from the Duty Social Care Worker, they should seek to raise their concerns with the Duty Manager and the time in which this should be done is dependent on the level of concern but again attempts should be made to resolve this within 24-48 hours. If the situation is deemed to be high risk then attempts to raise and resolve this should be done within a much quicker timeframe.
   - Should this fail to resolve the issue and the referrer remains concerned about the child’s welfare, the referrer should liaise with their line manager or the safeguarding lead for their agency. The line manager or safeguarding lead should then discuss the issues with the Duty Team Manager
   - Where disputes about access to Social Care services remain, the line manager or safeguarding lead should take their concerns to the Duty Service Manager. In most situations it is hoped this would lead to a resolution.
   - If concerns are not resolved at this stage the concern should be escalated up to Head of Service, for Duty & Targeted Family Support and ultimately the matter will be resolved by the Director of Children’s Integrated Services and their equivalent in the Agency concerned.
2. Where agencies have concerns about families, already open to Social Care and this concern is not shared by the allocated Social Worker. In this instance a similar process is to be followed:

   - If the referrer is unhappy with the response from the Fieldwork Social Care Worker, they should seek to raise their concerns with the appropriate Team Manager and the time in which this should be done is again dependent on the level of concern but as before, attempts should be made to resolve this within 24-48 hours. If the situation is deemed to be high risk, then attempts to raise and resolve this should be done within a much quicker timeframe.

   - Should this fail to resolve the issue and the referrer remains concerned about the child’s welfare, the referrer should liaise with their line manager or the safeguarding lead for their agency. The line manager or safeguarding lead should then discuss the issues with the appropriate Team Manager. Again if this fails to resolve the issue, the safeguarding lead should seek to liaise with the relevant Service Manager for that area.

It is important to note that in some situations it may be difficult to contact the Social Worker or Team Manager in a timely manner. If this is the case, contact should be made with the relevant Service Manager. Again this should be done within a timeframe which is commensurate with the situation and the perceived level of risk. This may need resolving at the earliest point possible (i.e. within a matter of hours) or within a 24 hour period depending on perceived level of risk.

Escalation processes should be followed through an agency’s line management structure.

For example in Fieldwork Social Care Teams,
